THE Bizerte problem has been poisoning
French-Tunisian relations ever since Tunisia gained independence.

TUNISIAN since. The Tunisians have enforce the rapid evacuation of this air and naval base, the last vestige of the French occupation; France, for its part, has been reluctant to enter into any final commitment concerning the evacuation of one of its remaining strongholds in North Africa, a base which France had transformed at great cost into an ideally protected command post in the event of nuclear war.

The dispute has flared from time to time, interspersed with long periods of relative calm; but now it seems to have entered into a critical phase. President de Gaulle, Chancellor Adenauer and the Presidents of Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, working with their Foreign Ministers, agreed on the resolution at a "little summit" conference here.

Defense Discussed

The news of the decision to strengthen political unity of the "Six" after its great success with economic unity, was made before the end of the meeting. The leaders went on to discuss the defense of Europe and relations with Africa and Latin America.

The leaders, whose widely different viewpoints long had delayed closer political cooperation, was generally regarded here as a big step toward the union of Europe, immediately after World War II, which brought about a re-action on the continent against traditional nationalism.

The Common Market countries took the action, the reasoning being, "In the same way that only a United Europe is in a position when united with the U.S. and other free peoples — to meet the dangers that threaten the existence of Europe and that of the entire free world."

The meeting ended the way it was left open for other nations to join the "Six" in working toward closer potential cooperation. This was obviously intended as reassurance to Britain and the other members of the European Free Trade Association, that they were not being shut out. But it was made clear there would be no special concessions to outsiders — such as Britain long has been.

Pakistan Recognition
After M-E Peace'

NEW YORK. — President Ayub Khan of Pakistan said on Monday that his Government will recognize Israel, for diplomatic purposes, "after Israel and the Arab states are at peace with each other." He also understood that the approaching Berlin crisis is scarcely a propitious time for asking France to evacuate one of its key strongholds.

The most important of President Bourguiba's reasons for choosing the present moment for his demarche may be sought in the complicated relations between President Bourguiba and the FLN. De Gaulle interrupted the Evian talks in the hope that the friction between the FLN and the countries bordering the Sahara over the future of this potentially valuable desert would reinforce France's bargaining position. He thought that the claims of Tunisia, Morocco, Mali and Niger would oblige the FLN to accept a condominium over the Sahara in which France could then participate. The FLN has meanwhile been able to persuade Morocco and Mali not to press their claims for the time being in order not to weaken the position of the FLN. Bourguiba has clearly not been satisfied with the FLN's promises and has preferred to act before Algeria becomes independent, rather than after. Tunisian volunteers will be sent to the part of the Sahara which Tunisia claims as its own. Should the Sahara be developed jointly, Bourguiba will reconsider his position.

More Action

It is understood that workers in two departments of the I.E.C. Jerusalem Division and in the Tel Aviv Action Committee are expressing their support for further action. These were the Collection and the House Installation Departments.

The Histadrut Trades Union Department, by a majority vote yesterday decided to bring all members of the Action Committee before the Histadrut Court of Honour and demand their expulsion from the Histadrut. The actions Committee before the Histadrut discipline did not further interfere.

He announced that new elections to the Works Committee would take place when the term of office of the present committee expired in three months' time.

Meet Today

The Council of the I.E.C. Workers' Committee will meet this morning at Beiteddin in Haifa to continue discussions interrupted on Tuesday by the constant blocking by members of the Actions Committee.

The Council will discuss the new agreement with the committee and the Histadrut decision to expel the Actions Committee members from its ranks.

It is understood that the nine leaders of the Actions Committees will meet in Tel Aviv tomorrow to discuss further action.

In Haifa some workers attempted to organize a sympathy strike yesterday, but failed. One of them started to work in the dining room during the lunch hour, but was thrown off the chair he had mounted. In Haifa, the I.E.C. is in full control of the workers' affairs at the company.

Euromart 'Six' Aim At Political Union

BONN (AP). — The leaders of the six continental European countries making up the Common Market decided yesterday to create a new institution to promote their political unity.

The supra-national political institution, so far unnamed, is likely to be called the European Council, and will have a statutory character within the shortest possible time.

President de Gaulle, Chancellor Adenauer and the Presidents of Italy, Holland, Belgium and Luxembourg, working with their Foreign Ministers, agreed on the resolution at a "little summit" conference here.

The situation in South Tyrol has deteriorated very much and therefore we have to speed up our moves," he told a press conference.

(South Tyrol is the Austrian name for the disputed German-speaking Bolzano Province in north Italy, which was ceded to Italy after World War I. Austria demands greater autonomy for the region.)

Dr. Kreisky condemned the terrorist activities by "some extremist circles" in the area and categorically denied that the Austrian Government had anything to do with it.

In Rome, it was reported that about 70 persons were detained and about 1,750 lbs. of dynamite seized in South Tyrol.

The Italian news agency Itala said that according to confessions by some of those detained, the squads of saboteurs were trained by "foreigners" who were also said to have taken part in sabotage attempts in the province — most of them against electricity pylons, some of which had been either wrecked or damaged.

The agency said "it has also been established that a large part of the explosive materials came from beyond the Brenner Pass area." (The pass separates Italy from Austria.)

Dag Due in Delhi, Cairo Next Week

UNITED NATIONS (AP). — The U.N. Secretary-General, Mr. Dag Hammarskjold, will leave here Friday or Saturday for conferences in New Delhi with Prime Minister Nehru on July 25 and return here July 26.

Mr. Hammarskjold said previously that "had a lot of unfinished U.N. business to do with the U.N. Arab refugees, the U.N. force in the Gaza strip, Arab-Israeli differences and UAR operation of the Suez Canal have long been debating subjects of the U.N."

There has been no announcement of what the two will talk about.

The Secretary-General is due in New Delhi Sunday. He will go on to Cairo for talks with Col. Abdul Nasser on July 25 and return here July 26.

Power Co. Strike Almost Total

Jerusalem Post Labour Correspondent

TEL AVIV. — Only 250 of 2,800 employees of the Electric Company's Southern Division reported for work yesterday following the 24-hour strike called by unofficial Actions Committees in protest at the recent agreement between the Works Committee and the management.

The strikers disregarded the Histadrut appeal to ignore the strike call.

The Southern Division includes all areas between Nazareth and Eilat. Apart from workers at the power stations who were exempted from the strike, the clerks in the Commercial Department in the Tel Aviv head offices remained loyal to the official Works Committee.

Hamekasher Hospital Service Said Poor

By SHALOM COHEN, Jerusalem Post Reporter

A little over a month after the Ein Karem Hadassah Medical Centre, Hadassah has complained to the Hamekasher bus company about overcrowded buses, failures to stick to the schedule the use of small, old buses, and the fact that the trip takes so long.

Hamekasher staff now call the bus service "the Shuk railings," after the train which used to run in the Valley of "one thousand houses" during the Mandate.

The hospital has asked Hamekasher to limit the number of standees, but Hamekasher has refused on the grounds that it could not afford to do so at a fare of 22 agorot, a Hamekasher spokesman told The Jerusalem Post.

Hadassah has also demanded the introduction of non-stop buses for the public. The one-way trip from Givatayim to the hospital would take 45 minutes instead of the 30 minutes maximum time by Hamekasher, it says.

The service — No. 19 — serves as a "collector" through Jerusalem on its way to Ein Karem. Hadassah has asked that, in addition to express buses, the number of stops be reduced.

The Hadassah spokesman said that the Ministry of

Gagarin Kissed By a Star

MOSCOW (UPI) — Space man Yuri Gagarin yesterday met newsmen and delegates to the Moscow Film Festival and got kissed on the cheek by Italian movie actress Gina Lollobrigida.

American correspondents asked Mai Gagarin, who has just returned from a triumphant five-day visit to Britain, if he had any plans to visit the U.S. and other countries.

He said he had neither an official invitation to visit the U.S. nor a visa. "So how can I go there?"

The cosmonaut added he was going to Poland and to Cuba later this month.

About 100 delegates and foreign correspondents to the Film Festival crowded into a conference room at the Culture Ministry to applaud Mai Gagarin when he entered. Miss Lollobrigida appeared as excited as the teen-aged movie fans who often follow her.

I.P.O. to be Sued By Injured Singers

TEL AVIV — The Tel Aviv District Court yesterday allowed a request to include the Israel Philharmonic Orchestra with a taxi driver, an army driver, and the State of Israel who were being sued by four Italian opera singers who were injured in an automobile accident in Tel Aviv in February, 1959. The singers were at the time appearing with the I.P.O.

In deciding to add the I.P.O. to the list of defendants, Tel Aviv District Court Judge Yosef Lamm rejected the argument by the Attorney-General's representative that the I.P.O. was not a legal person and as such could not be sued. Even if this were true, Judge Lamm said, it would still not mean that a body that was not a legal person could not figure as a principal in court proceedings.

In the Supreme Court Sitting as Court of Civil Appeals

Before Justices Silberg, Witkin, and Cohn.

Ya'acov Opiatka, Appellant, v.

Barak Opiatka, Respondent (C.A. 536/60).

Widow Not Entitled to Ketuba and Maintenance

The Supreme Court allowed an appeal against a judgment of the Jerusalem District Court dated November 20, 1960 (in CC. 214/60).

The late Nissim Opiatka left a will in which he divided his property equally amongst his wife and five children from a previous marriage. In his will he explained that he was leaving his wife an equal share of his property, even and above all, because of his affection for her, "with her heart and soul." He also asked his children to live at peace with his wife and to honour her—which he wrote, "would give him joy in the next world."

But instead, his four sons and daughter started litigating with the estate, and filed an application in the Jerusalem District Court for probate of the father's will, while not objecting to the probate of the will as such, maintained that the applicants had not indicated how they intended to maintain the widow or to maintain her from her husband's estate, and they filed an application in the Jerusalem District Court for probate of the father's will, while not objecting to the probate of the will as such, maintained that the applicants had not indicated how they intended to maintain the widow or to maintain her from her husband's estate.

In the case under consideration, he continued, the fact that the respondent had agreed to probate of her husband's will (in which he ex-

property in addition to her ketuba) must be taken to imply that she had claimed both her ketuba and the additional property left her by her husband. As she had, therefore, no claim to either she was barred from claiming maintenance from the estate

As to C.A. 95/64, on which Judge Peretz had ruled, it is true, held Justice Cohn, that it does contain an obiter dictum, to the effect that a widow's right to maintenance is not prejudiced by the fact that the husband paid off his husband's estate. But this judgment, he pointed out,

does not deal with the question of a widow's right to maintenance once she has already elected to take her ketuba. He was of the opinion, concluded Justice Cohn, that the question of whether a widow is entitled to maintenance in addition to part of her husband's estate required further consideration;

but in the present case

this was not an issue, he thought it could be left to a more appropriate occasion.

The appeal should be allowed.

Appeal allowed without costs.

Judgment given on May 7, 1961.

Achievements of Independent African Nations Evoke Pride

By Erwin Freinkel

MISS Sita Bella, who covered President Yaméogo's visit to Israel for her magazine, "La Vie Africaine," is the first African woman journalist to come to Israel. Born in the French Cameroons, Miss Bella, 29, petite, sensitive, and sophisticated, is the women's editor and diplomatic and foreign affairs correspondent of "La Vie Africaine" which is published monthly in Paris and sent to the French-speaking nations of Africa. Her visit to Israel—though she was born as an official member of President Yaméogo's party—came about quite by accident. On the day prior to President Yaméogo's departure from Paris she went to his hotel to interview him for her magazine. During the interview she expressed regrets that she could not come to Israel with him, and the President invited her on the spot. This at noon. At 5 p.m. she received a call at her office that all the arrangements had been made and that take-off time was 9:30 a.m. next morning.

Top Of Class

Miss Bella received her elementary education in the French Cameroons. After graduating at the top of her secondary school class she was awarded a scholarship to study in Paris. She attended a nursing school for two years, and then decided to do the examinations necessary to enter the Sorbonne. By this time her scholarship money was exhausted and she financed her way by means of various odd jobs—baby sitting, clerking in banks, and for a while even served as a chauffeur for an elderly gentleman. In return for room and board,

The rigours of life as a working student began, however, to take their toll, and from 1957 to 1959 Miss Bella was hospitalized in Paris—managing, nevertheless, to do her examinations from the hospital bed.

The year 1959 marked a change in her fortunes. Upon leaving the hospital, she organized a group of her fellow African students into a folk dance troupe, and they were engaged by various Parisian night clubs. One evening after the performance she met a French journalist who suggested that she try her hand at writing.

Household Hints

THERE'S a lot more in a tube of soapless soap or shampoo than meets a baby's tender bottom.

Use it for the shower, for instance, on your return from the sea. The salt left on your skin, which would make ordinary soap almost impossible to lather, has next to no effect on soapless soap, which retains its full cleansing powers on your pores. No need to wait till you go swimming—it is useful to have an occasional rub-down with soapless soap, especially if you live in a salt-water area, or if you have been out on a dusty drive!

Husbands can be encouraged to use more shampoo than their balding fringes might warrant. Nothing cleans greasy-stained hands as quickly and efficiently as shampoo, for either bath or shower. Shampoo also makes an efficient substitute for shaving cream and can be applied without a brush (but shaving cream is no substitute for shampoo!).

Talking of substitutes: ordinary toothpaste makes an excellent substitute for either polish (the polishing and cleaning ingredients in toothpaste are almost identical with those in silver polish). Rub it on thinly with a dry rag, let it dry, then either rub it off or rinse it off. URSULA MAYHE

Fruit Luncheon Stays with You

Jerusalem Post Reporter

FROM champagne cocktail (iced with apple and grape juice) to rice pudding (layered with custard and grapes), Trauva played host to a group of women journalists at a fruit lunch last Monday.

The fruit-based menu was served at the Lawyers' House in Tel Aviv, and was prepared under the direction of dietician Lillian Cornfield. Discussion over the melon, tarts, and salad plates fell into three areas: the dietician and health virtues of fruit; taste and eye appeal; and—most heatedly—the economic problems of high and non-uniform prices for fruit in Israel.

The first two topics are thoroughly explained. Mrs. Cornfield explained and demonstrated how the wide variety of fruits available here can be turned into beautiful and satisfying dishes to constitute an entire meal. With cheese, a fruit luncheon makes an excellent choice from meat-centred dishes.

As to the matter of price,

the journalists asked many questions of the Trauva

ONCE a year—at the Savyon Wizo Annual Meeting at Savyon—we have our annual "Eating". On this occasion we all leave our husbands at home to baby sit and each of the 100 local Wizo members prepares her favourite dairy dish (six portions).

The food is so good and so varied and makes such conversation that one almost forgets about the meal.

One day I hope the Savyon Wizo women will compile a cookbook of what the women here can do, and make some money for school lunches for youngsters who have never tasted Varenichki or Sour Cherries with Sweet Cream.

At least six women brought along all of them different meat-and-potatoes meal. "And it stays with you," adds Mrs. Cornfield.

N.R.P. to Support Anti-B-G Vote in Knesset Debate

Jerusalem Post Political Reporter

The Knesset will apparently convene next week to debate the Prime Minister's statements on the Committee of Seven despite the N.R.P.'s decision to withdraw from the list of parties demanding the special session.

The National Religious Party informed Mr. Ishai Harari, of the Liberal Party, that they will not sign a request for a special session, but will vote for a resolution ensuring the Prime Minister's continuing in Cabinet "despite his 'dissidence'"; it, after its vote on the "Committee of Seven" report.

Mr. Harari expects to receive replies from Herut, Mapam, and Adut Ha'avoda today whether they are still demanding a special Knesset debate on the matter.

The Liberal Party yesterday announced that it will request an emergency meeting of the Knesset Foreign Affairs and Security Committee to discuss the firing of Shavit 2, granting of arms to Egypt, the son of Hashemite Prince Hussein, the collection of "donations" to party election funds in military industries and the "sale" of arms to Argentina.

It was reported yesterday that personal friends of Mr. Pinhas Lavan have sent him a cable urging him to advance his return, tentatively scheduled for Tuesday, July 25, to Sunday next, in time to take part in the special Knesset session the following day.

At Sunday's Cabinet meeting Mapal Ministers Pinhas Sapir and Bechor Shirit voted with the majority to re-affirm the findings of the Committee of Seven of the Lavan affair; it is learned.

In Monday's Jerusalem Post, it was erroneously reported that Mr. Shirit abstained and that Mr. Sapir left the meeting before the vote was taken.

Archaeologists Inspect Neanderthal Find

TIBERIAS. — Archaeologists of the Government Antiquities Department and the Hebrew University, among them Prof. M. Steckel, Prof. B. Mazor, and Dr. A. Biran, yesterday visited the site where a skeleton of a Neanderthal man was found in a cave in Wadi Abud. They were given explanations by members of the Japanese team exploring the cave.

In the meantime it was found that the skeleton is almost intact with only a few ribs missing, and the cranium has a few well-preserved teeth. The man was buried one-metre deep in a seated position. The Japanese archaeologists are now making arrangements to dismantle the skeleton for shipment to Japan for further study. It is believed that permission for the skeleton's removal has been granted by the authorities.

Haifa Musicians End Strike

HAIFA. — What is probably the longest strike in the history of music ended here yesterday when the Haifa Symphony Orchestra's 35 players took up their string wind and other instruments after a six weeks' strike to protest against non-payment of their salaries.

A bank loan made it possible to pay the musicians' March salaries, and they went back to rehearse for three concerts, one of them to be given at the opening of the Municipal Theatre. A public committee is now looking for ways and means of ending the H.S.O.'s financial troubles.

Jerusalem Post Reporter

Hadassah will from next Saturday transport its Saturday duty staff to the Ein Karem Medical Centre in a bus hired from Hamekasher, and which will be painted white with a red Magen David, and so have the appearance of an ambulance.

'Fuehrer's Word Law'

By DORIS LANKIN, Jerusalem Post Reporter

The Fuehrer's word was law. Adolf Eichmann told the Jerusalem District Court yesterday when being cross-examined by the Attorney-General, Mr. Gideon Hausner, as to whether he had ever taken the trouble to find out if the orders he claimed to have received had any basis in law.

Mr. Hausner had asked Eichmann who had been responsible for passing the death sentences on several thousand smuggling letters out of Theresienstadt. Eichmann replied that the executions had been ordered by the Head of the Security Police - S.S. in Prague, who must have got his authority from the Secretary of State for Security in the Protectorate.

Q. Was there any law giving the Secretary of State for Security the right to empower a R.S.H.A. to sentence people to death?

A. I do not know. I only know that there were then a Secretary of State for Security. He could deal with sentences without the R.S.H.A. entering into the picture.

Q. Was there a law enabling the commandant of an extermination camp to exterminate his own people?

A. Such a law certainly did not exist. I do not know any more, as this was not my affair. I only knew that they relied at that time on the dictum: "The Fuehrer's word is law."

Q. Was there a law which allowed Globocnik to execute 150,000 Jews and then another 250,000, and then again another 150,000, and another 250,000 in the Government-General? In this you did have a hand. You at least dictated the post-mortem authorization for this, according to your own words.

A. I have already admitted that I was ordered to do so. As to the rest, I had no hand in it. This was arranged on a higher level.

Q. Was there a law which permitted you to carry out mass deportations from the Reich to the occupied territories?

A. I do not know. I did not work independently. I received orders from superiors directly from my superiors and had to carry them out.

Q. Were you not at all interested to know whether this was legal or illegal according to the laws of the Reich?

A. When my orders came from the head of my office, who was the chief of the State Criminal Police and a Lieutenant-General, he was responsible for them. He probably knew the source of those orders. I did not give orders, and it was not my business to worry about them.

Q. Does that mean that it did not concern you whether the orders were lawful or unlawful?

A. The question did not arise. My orders were not ambiguous.

Q. Did you never ask: Where is the law? Who is the authority? Where is the basis for deporting millions of persons to the camps in the East? Where is the law?

A. I was not a jurist. I had to obey. I knew only the ways of a soldier.

Just before this exchange, Eichmann claimed that his Department IVB4 had dealt only with the transfers pertaining to Theresienstadt that were of vital importance to the interests of the Reich.

In reply to Mr. Hausner's question whether the alignment of the beds in Theresienstadt was a matter of vital importance, he said that he presumed that when the ghetto was first established the problem of accommodation was extremely important, and that he had

Angry at Envoy Who Let Jews Flee

By MACARIO DEAN,
Jerusalem Post Reporter

would do their work and in a few decades bring about an automatic and natural solution to the problem. However, he claimed, no one had paid any particular attention to his opinions, as he was not a jurist and this was a legal question.

"So why," Mr. Hausner asked, "if your opinion was so moderate, were you classed with Blume, Reichsman and Sommer as being most fanatical and extreme in your views on this question, in an affidavit submitted by Dr. Loescher?"

At this Eichmann became incensed and expressed great surprise that Loescher, who, he claimed, had been the chief initiator of the whole affair, could have said such a thing when his own lord and master, State Secretary Stuckard, had submitted to the most extreme measure."

Q. But Loescher does not single you out and make a scapegoat of you. He mentions you in the company of a whole group of people as being most zealous on this matter.

A. How could he have mentioned me particularly when I was not a jurist and had never participated in all the meetings at which the jurists discussed and considered this matter?

Mr. Hausner then confronted Eichmann with a document reporting that Eichmann and Reichsman had been violently opposed to the new instructions issued by Hitler ordering that no action be taken against soldiers who had married women of mixed marriages, but that they had said that they would of course consider themselves bound by them.

Eichmann retorted that he had regarded only the official minutes of the meeting mentioning in the document as binding, and in the minutes his name did not appear as a participant.

Mr. Hausner. So how do you explain the fact that you and your colleagues had come to the conclusion that, as well as at the very beginning, Reichsman, were violently opposed to the new instructions issued by Hitler?

A. It is really beyond me.

Q. And you told Bureau 06

A. But I was not angry at Bureau 06.

Q. And this has irritated you to this day.

A. If it irritated me, Best — they were all very sensitive — would have felt it and said something.

Q. But your interrogation showed us that you were still angry at Best.

A. No. It was this way.

Each one of these persons started the wheels turning, and then left me alone. And then I was alone.

Q. Did he know that Sondertilhandlung meant death or not?

A. He certainly did not know that at the time. He wrote to him from Lodz to ask him what to do about the 88 children from Lodz, although he pleaded that he would have to do fit for Germanization and not for those who were not.

Q. But you will agree with me that Krumey knew very well that you did not deal with fitness for Germanization.

A. Yes. He knew that I dealt with matters of transportation, as my department had worked together with the Centre for Evacuation and Resettlement for a long time.

Q. Exactly. So when he wrote to you about Sondertilhandlung he knew exactly what you wanted to do.
